

The Long-Term Care game has changed. Let us show you how...

There is a 70% chance that the average 65-year-old will require some type of long-term care services during their life. Yet, long-term care (LTC) is hard to think about and few people have properly planned to ensure they can live their best life. Long-term care planning can no longer be done in crisis mode - costing you more and giving you less.

Harris Capital Advisors are expert consultants who help you navigate long-term care planning strategies to find what fits you best and prepare you and your family for the future.

The Harris Capital Advisors philosophy is that long-term care planning should be done long before you need it and must consider your unique lifestyle desires, health and financial goals. Their expertise is in helping you understand how your existing financial assets can be repositioned to pay for LTC.

Why Harris Capital Advisors?

Speak with a Harris Capital Advisors consultant to learn about different long-term care planning strategies and find what fits you best. We serve all of our clients with the pure intention of helping families preserve their assets if and when long term care is needed in the future so they can achieve their ideal retirement.

Call us at (860) 385-2043 or email us at brian@harriscapital.com to be more intentional about your future today.